Multiple offerings of this one-day class are listed below

Living as a totally responsible person equals living in total freedom, connected to a very personal purpose that drives every day interactions. We spend much of our lives living in an “illusion of control”; we focus on trying to control both people and things that are far outside of our actual control. This leads us to feel frustrated and often trapped within circumstances that surround us.

In The Totally Responsible Person you will come face to face with the reality that “you own you” and that’s it. And in that reality, discover the freedom to fully own your beliefs, thoughts, feelings, decisions, behavior and results – and claim the learning and growth that comes with that ownership.

This course is powerful and relevant to anyone who is fully committed to his/her personal and professional learning and growth!

In this course you will:

- Recognize personal leadership strength and how we can use everyday moments of choice to express the values that will create our legacy
- Identify the subtle and often unconscious ways we play the “blame game”
- Learn strategies to move past the all-too-familiar feelings of being trapped and develop the power behind an attitude of complete ownership
- Start to cultivate the habit of reframing challenges as opportunities for learning and growth
- Examine your influence; discover why shielding others from the consequences of their actions is unproductive
- Learn to empower others responsibly
- Uncover a greater sense of purpose and connect that purpose to everyday interactions to drive totally responsible behaviors
