

Additional Insured and Minimum Requirements For Today's Construction Marketplace

Lunch and Learn

Construction involves extremely diverse work, and one of the most intricate risk landscapes out of any industry.

With that in mind, tailoring your risk transfer tools to your company's particular risk landscape is of paramount importance.

This session will take a deep dive into requirements for additional insured and minimum insurance.

Participants will explore the following pressing topics:

- Critical importance of the written agreement
- Not all additional insured endorsements are created equal
- Wrap-up exclusions
- Best practice for different types of construction
- Tailoring limit requirements per trade

Content is geared toward both general and specialty contractors and will be of particular interest to risk managers, CFOs, purchasing and estimating personnel, executive teams, and general counsels.
