AGC GEORGIA PRESENTS

LEAN Education Program 2.0

Thursdays and Fridays

February 19-20 & 26-27, 2026

7:30 am – 5:00 pm each day

AGC Georgia Training Center, 1940 The Exchange, Atlanta 30339

Instructor: Spencer Hohn – Certified Lean Instructor

Looking to streamline your construction projects while enhancing quality and reducing costs? The Lean Construction Education Program is your answer. This comprehensive program is designed for construction professionals at all levels. It teaches the Lean Operating System, focusing on continuous improvements for every aspect of a construction project, from planning to recycling.

This program includes five units, covering everything from the introduction to Lean Construction to applying Lean thinking outside of field of production. You'll learn about process efficiency, variation mitigation, the Last Planner System, and much more. Plus, participants have the opportunity to apply for an exam to earn the Certificate of Management – Lean Construction (CM-Lean), signifying a deep understanding of Lean principles and practices.

Whether you're a seasoned professional or new to the field, this program will provide the knowledge and skills to transform your projects and company into a model Lean efficiency. Course Units:

- Introduction to Lean Construction
- Process and Production Basics
- Project Production Systems
- Lean Thinking in Field Production, Last Planner System
- Lean Thinking Outside of Field Production

About the Instructor – Spencer Hohn is a seasoned Lean Construction Leader and former Army Engineer Officer. Spencer brings over 14 years of military service and 10+years of senior experience in construction operations, project management, and organizational leadership. Spencer's career spans leadership roles at national construction firms, where he has trained thousands of professionals and helped standardize Lean practices across portfolios valued up to $5 billion.
