

Corporate Safety Awards Criteria

AGC Georgia partners with the AGC of America to promote the NASA Program. (NASA stands for National AGC Safety Awards.)

Contractors must have zero lost work day cases for a calendar year to be eligible for the NASA Zero Incidence Rate Award.

Through 2021, AGC of America required all contractors submitting data to the NASA program to participate for three years before they were eligible for recognition in the national program.

Due to this national requirement, in the past, AGC Georgia recognized all contractors with a chapter Corporate Safety Award that met the Zero Incidence Rate criteria, but didn't have three years worth of participation history.

Beginning with this year's NASA program (2022), there is no longer a three-year participation requirement, thus AGC Georgia will no longer provide a separate award due to the criteria for the national and state programs now being equal.
