The number and types of technologies available to construction firms has never been greater. Tablets, cloud computing, BIM and many other resources create value in design and construction delivery, but what about safety? How can apps and programs create a safer jobsite and streamlined reporting?

Our upcoming Technology Forum, hosted by AGC Georgia's Technology Committee and moderated by Rob McKinney, the ConAppGuru, will offer attendees an opportunity to think outside the box from their normal routines and consider innovative options to streamline your firm's safety program. We'll begin the program by offering an overview from the contractor's perspective of the following apps and then venture wherever participants want to go with the day's discussion.

- Safesite   Web-based safety management platform
- Notevault   Voice record safety items and share with team
- FotoIn   Create custom tags for safety and auto sync to server
- FieldLens   Create issues and assign to others for correction
- RMP App   Document safety items and sync to private server
- iAuditor   Create and share custom safety forms
- BIM 360 Field   Track safety items to correction through app

Who Attends? These programs attract a cross-section of professionals. Many are IT directors and project managers, others have a personal interest in technology, while many from smaller offices are tapped as the designated IT guru but have no background in the field! When this mix of professionals comes together, the conversation results in a valuable information exchange of best practices and lessons learned.
