It was the Worst of Times, It was the Best of Times: Leadership in the Post-Covid Era

Presented by construction industry leadership guru, Wally Adamchik

What is the state of culture and leadership in the construction industry today? Research, interviews, and experience confirm a state of flux that presents unique challenges as firms and people move into an uncertain future. This dynamic session will share insights, ideas and usable tips to flourish in leadership today and tomorrow.

Simply stated, the world of today is not the world of yesterday and that demands new perspectives and new solutions. The challenges will never go away but they can be managed.

Join Wally Adamchik, President of FireStarter Speaking and Consulting to explore these issues. He has been a friend to AGC Georgia for many years and earns rave reviews every time he speaks at association events. He's widely respected and recognized in the construction industry and is a regular contributor at construction conferences across the nation.

Key Participant Takeaways:

- Understand the changing nature of leadership in construction
- Identify opportunities for personal development
- Analyze and assess the culture of your team or firm

Fun facts about our speaker:

- ✓ During his senior year at the University of Notre Dame, he was the Leprechaun mascot!
- ✓ As an Officer of The Marine Corps, he was the pilot of AH-1W Super Cobra attack helicopters.
